Artist's Statement:

My style varies with my subject matter. I feel equally at home painting abstractly and realistically. My subjects vary and all are derived from my personal interests and experiences. I have never concerned myself with what might or might not be saleable. I have had for example a lifelong interest in the Native Americans and I have painted many semi-abstract works based on their myths and legends. I mention this only to make the point that this is hardly the route many would take if money-making was their motivating force.

In short I love the freedom of painting what I want to paint.
